Dean was not a sweet bee. Not in the least. "I like to sting," said Dean. "It is a lot of fun. You can make men scream. Hee hee." Dean went buzz, buzz, buzz to the creek.

There was a man near the water. "I will sneak up on him," said Dean. The man, Jim, did not see the bee. Sting! Jim was not a weak man. Not in the least. Smack! Jim hit Dean. "What a mean bee. That is what you get for that sting!" Dean did not sting again! The End.

Ben has a red nose. He can sneeze a lot.
Ch. Ch. Ch. "I will get a dog," said Ben. "Is that real wise?" said Ben's wife, Jean. Ben got a dog. The dog made Ben sneeze. "I will get a cat," said Ben. "That is not what you need," said Jean. Ben got rid of the dog and got a cat. The cat made Ben sneeze as well. "Ug!" said Ben. "Get a frog," said Jean.

"At least it will not make you sneeze."

Ben got rid of the cat and got a green frog.

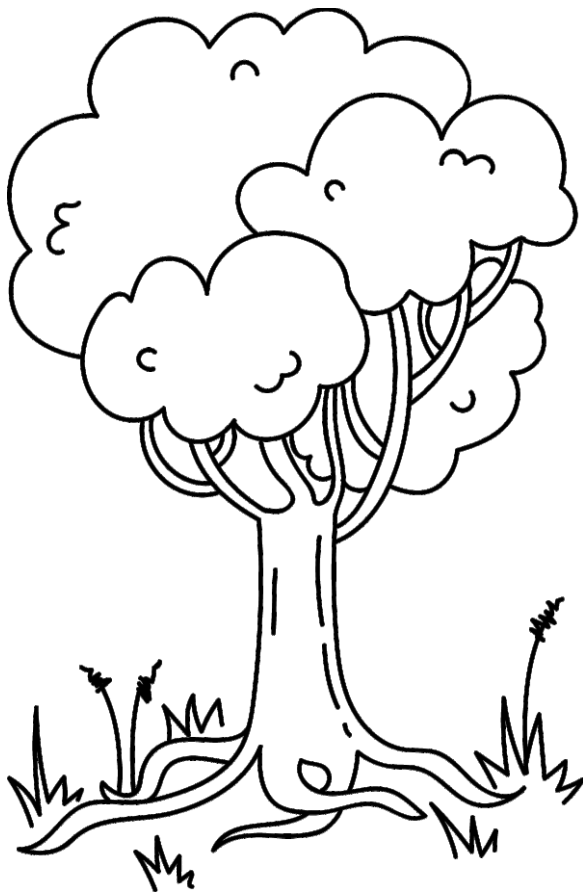

The frog did not make him sneeze.
"A frog is the best pet!" said Ben.
The End.

The Weed

There was a weed in the green grass.
"UG!" said Rick. "I do not like weeds!"

Rick dug the weed up. The next week, the weed was back. "Dear me!" said Rick. "That cheap weed is back!" Rick's cheeks were red. Stomp, stomp went his feet. He was very mad. He dug it up again. But the next week, the weed was not a weed:

it was a big, green tree. A tweet, tweet came from the top. "That tree is like a dream," said Rick. "I am glad I did not get rid of it." The End.
